James Madison Program
in American Ideals and Institutions

CON INTERP: REVISITING THE CLASSROOM EXPERIENCE

How did the framers of the Constitution seek to prevent tyranny and protect liberty?

How should we adjudicate among competing approaches to their handiwork?

Generations of Princeton students have wrestled with these questions under the tutelage of such legendary scholars as Edward S. Corwin, Alpheus T. Mason, and Walter F. Murphy. Constitutional Interpretation continues to be taught at Princeton and to attract students who want to be challenged to deepen their understanding of American Constitutional democracy.

Robert P. George, McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence; Director, James Madison Program, Princeton University, invites alumni to experience "Con Interp" as it is taught today.

Friday, June 1, 2018 • 1:30 - 3:00 p.m.

THE JAMES MADISON PROGRAM IN AMERICAN IDEALS AND INSTITUTIONS

in the Department of Politics at Princeton University is dedicated to exploring enduring questions of American constitutional law and Western political thought. The Program is also devoted to examining the application of basic legal and ethical principles to contemporary problems. To realize its mission, the James Madison Program implements a number of initiatives. The Program, founded in the summer of 2000, awards visiting fellowships and postdoctoral appointments each year to support scholars conducting research in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. The Program supports the James Madison Society, an international community of scholars, and promotes civic education by its sponsorship of conferences, lectures, seminars, and colloquia. The Program's Undergraduate Fellows Forum provides opportunities for Princeton undergraduates to interact with Madison Program Visiting Fellows and speakers. The Madison Program also awards a Senior Thesis Prize for Excellence in Constitutional Law and Political Thought each year. The success of the James Madison Program depends on the support of foundations and private individuals who share its commitment in advancing the understanding and appreciation of American ideals and institutions. We are deeply grateful to all who stand with us.
